THE PINK LIST

2022

It's time to
pink...

It's no secret that pale, dry Provence rosés have been the drink of the summer for the past few years.

In fact, while the rest of us were locked away throughout 2020 and half of 2021, rosé sales were soaring – and Jacques Breban, president of the Provence Wine Council, is predicting that global consumption of the pink stuff will be up 50% by 2035.

According to a recent report by PROOF, trendsetting bars across the UK have begun to diversify their rosé offering beyond Provence. Now, customers are branching out into alternative regions, more structured and age-worthy options, and even non-conventional rosés that tilt more towards chilled reds.

We've pulled together the best blush wines from our portfolio to make up The Pink List, packed full of everything you need to make sure your rosé range is in tip-top shape for 2022 and beyond.

Happy drinking!

ROSÉ CHAMPAGNE

King of the blush-bubble world, Rosé Champagne has been loved and enjoyed across the globe since 1764, when the first bottle was produced by Ruinart. Crafted either through longer skin maceration of Pinot Noir grapes, or through the more modern technique of blending, these are pale pink wines with a stellar reputation for flavour, quality, and luxury.

Pair them with:

Canapes for lighter styles, while vintage styles can hold their own against grilled lobster and salmon.

Champagne R. Pouillon

Champagne, France

Now in their third generation, Pouillon was established in 1947, and oversees 40 parcels of vines over seven hectares.

The Pouillon Rosé de Maceration Brut Premier Cru is the result of a short maceration of 100% Pinot Noir grapes, and is vinified in a mix of tank and barrels. The Pinot Noir grapes come from the village Mareuil sur Aÿ, which is known for its powerful Pinot Noir from the southern slopes.

With regular tilling, preservation of ecosystems, and the use of natural farm compost, this Grower Champagne believes that the best wines come from living soil. They respect the vines by practicing minimal pruning and restricting yields. The grapes are pressed in their traditional wooden press, in small quantities.

SPARKLING ROSÉ

Where Champagne went, others followed! Across the world, producers are experimenting with their own blush styles of sparkling, many of which more than hold their own against Champagne in terms of quality and flavour. Innovation is rife in the category; from the all-new Prosecco Rosé, to English rosés in cans.

Pair them with:

Afternoon tea! Sweeter styles pair up perfectly with cakes, muffins, and fruit tarts.

Llopart

Penedès, Catalunya, Spain

Llopart is one of nine Spanish producers who have formed their own brand, Corpinnat, a collective umbrella brand for organic sparkling wines made in the heart of the Penedès, with everything harvested by hand and entirely vinified on the premises of each winery.

The Llopart Brut Rosé Corpinnat is always made by the saignée method, which involves the removal (bleeding off or draining off) of a proportion of juice from a tank of crushed red grapes. This technique increases the skin contact in the tank, and typically produces much richer wines with more colour and tannin.

Blending white and red wines together isn't an option in this region, which is why Monastrell, Garnacha, and Pinot Noir is used.

Balfour

Kent, England

Balfour Brut Rosé is the flagship of this winery, and is made in small quantities every year. It was also the only wine produced by them for their first six years.

The grapes come from only the Oast House Meadow vineyard, which was planted in 2002 with clones and rootstocks specifically chosen to make a world-class sparkling rosé. The wine picked up a Gold award at the 2008 IWC awards, as well as the trophy for Best English Wine, prompting them to expand their horizons to other varieties and still wines.

Their Pink Fizz cans bring together two things they are passionate about: sparkling rosé and innovation. This wine, sold in cans, is made with the same level of dedication and quality as their other wines. The canning process ensures that the wine tastes fresher and fruitier for longer, while it also offers a more sustainable choice.

The Nanette's Rosé is a Provencal-style rosé with a bit of English influence. The wine is made from a blend of Regent, Chardonnay, and Pinot Noir grapes, which are all fermented separately and then blended.

Ridgeview

Sussex, England

In just 25 years, Ridgeview's wines have become a beacon in the English wine industry and they've been awarded over 250 medals and 27 trophies in both international and national competitions.

Ridgeview's vineyards benefit from the best of British terroir: clay-loam topsoil with a deep limestone ridge to bring crispness and freshness to the wines. Their philosophy is simple: minimal intervention to allow the fruit to speak for itself.

Every grape is handpicked and selected for perfect balance between ripeness, sugar and acidity. The grapes are then pressed in Ridgeview's modern winery and transformed into their well-known sparkling wine. Their Rosé de Noirs Brut 2016 is made from Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier, and won Gold at the Champagne and Sparkling Wine World Championships of 2018.

The Fitzrovia Brut Rosé NV is made from Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier, and was even served to Barack Obama by Her Majesty the Queen at a Buckingham Palace State Banquet.

Chateau d'Esclans

Provence, Cotes de Provence

Chateau d'Esclans' Domaines Sacha Lichine is a magical property situated in the heart of Provence, northeast of St Tropez, on a site surrounded by parkland, forest and gnarled old vines. This mid-19th century chateau overlooks the bucolic Esclans Valley straight down to the Mediterranean coast.

Acquired by Sacha Lichine in 2006, it was the start of what would become a new chapter in rosé. Now in its sixteenth vintage, Château d'Esclans Domaines Sacha Lichine is where Whispering Angel was conceived. The range now includes Rock Angel, Whispering Angel, Chateau d'Esclans, Les Clans and the iconic Garrus.

Lady A

Provence, France

The Lady A blend of Grenache and Cinsault is described by Soho House Master Sommelier Vincent Gasnier as a “delicious, thirst-quenching rosé – yet delicate and elegant. Pale in colour, it is light, crisp and zesty.”

Lady A is the result of a collaboration between Soho House and Chateau La Coste in Provence. Chateau La Coste spans some 200ha, and boasts a winemaking tradition that dates back to Roman times. Wanting to preserve the terroir, Chateau La Coste takes the utmost care of the soil and the natural surroundings by opting for an organic winemaking process, applying biodynamic principles and prioritising quality over quantity.

The wine is the result of wanting to reveal as much as possible of the subtlety of the terroir from which the grapes come. The choice of the Grenache and Cinsault blend, and ageing on fine lees for five months, allows the grapes to fully express themselves.

Rumor Rosé

Provence, France

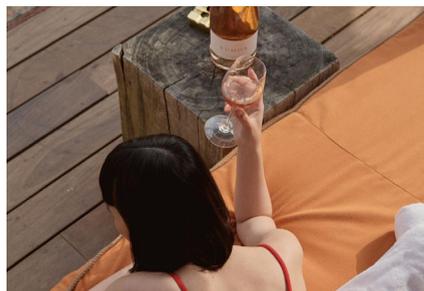

RUMOR is a new rosé from an old world. Produced and bottled in the heart of Provence in a vineyard established in the 13th century by the Knights Templar, it is located at an altitude of 330m positioned on the lower slopes of the Massif des Maures.

The clay-limestone soil has a stony content of more than 40%, resulting directly from the Triassic, which is ideal for viticulture.

The vineyard is rigorously maintained and is farmed according to organic principles and in full respect of the surrounding environment and local Mediterranean ecosystem.

The production of RUMOR prohibits synthetic fertilisers, pesticides or fungicides, to protect ancient winemaking traditions and the delicate flavour.

Ultimate Provence

Provence, France

Ultimate Provence are pioneers when it comes to innovation, creativity, and a modern approach.

The Ultimate Provence vineyard, where they practice sustainable farming techniques, spans 40ha around the town of La Garde Freinet, at the northern foot of Notre Dame des Anges chapel. Set in the countryside and bordered by an oak forest, the vineyard is characterised by shallow soil, laid on a waterproof subsoil sandstone slab.

This excellent terroir is nourished with a natural compost of oak leaves and vine stalks.

The Ultimate Provence Rosé is made from Grenache Noir, Cinsault, Syrah, and Rolle, and has received 90 points from Wine Enthusiast for the 2017, 2018, and 2019 vintages.

PALE PINK PERFECTION

Similarly light in colour and body, these are the world-class wines that have taken their inspiration from the success of Provence. Premium venues across the UK are expanding their lists outside this region: whether it be other French winemakers, pale pinks from New Zealand, or even offerings from South Africa's Coastal Region.

Maison Lafage

Languedoc-Roussillon, France

Jean-Marc and Eliane Lafage have produced an unusual rosé with a particularly elaborate technique. The grapes are harvested from a selection of cool terroirs in Roussillon.

For the La Triple Rosé, Grenache Gris, Syrah and Vermentino are blended during harvesting, and all the juices are then aged in tank for two months. The juice is fermented at a low temperature, before lowering the tank to 0°C, halting fermentation.

It is from this process that La Triple Rosé gets its fine and light bubbles and crisp and fresh fruit. The light bubbles are completed by adding carbon dioxide (gasification method) to enhance the natural fermentation, and a hint of barrel aged Grenache Gris is added to the final blend

MEDIUM-BODIED DRY

A more classic style of rosé, which is gradually coming back into its own after the popularity surge of Provence. Classic winemaking regions across the Mediterranean – think Rioja, Navarra, and even the Rhone – opt to leave grapes on skins for longer, creating wines that, while still bone dry, have greater structure, body, and fruit flavour. Hugely versatile, and ideal for pairing up with a whole range of food.

Journey's End

Stellenbosch, South Africa

Journey's End is nestled among the Schapenberg hills of Stellenbosch, South Africa, beneath which lay 350 million year old decomposed granite soils. This creates one of the most sought-after terroirs in South Africa.

The vineyards benefit from the cooling and cleansing south-easterly wind, known as the 'Cape Doctor', which comes in from nearby False Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. The team is wholly committed to being environmentally sustainable and socially responsible.

To make the Wild Child Grenache Rosé, grapes are picked at low sugars and ripeness. Skin contact is kept to a minimum to ensure the beautiful light colour of the wine. Fermentation takes place in stainless steel tanks and bottled soon after the fermentation is complete to ensure freshness.

Vivanco

Rioja, Spain

Vivanco is one of Rioja's leading producers, with winemaker Rafael Vivanco Saenz currently at the helm. The winery is located in the Briones region, an enclave in the Rioja Alta at the foothills of the Cantabrian Mountain Range, with its own unique microclimate.

The Rioja Rosado is made from Tempranillo, Garnacha Tinta and Garnacha Blanca, and is vinified following traditional free-run methods. The grape juice obtained from crushing the grapes remains in contact with the skins between 12 to 24 hours at a temperature of 8°C.

After this maceration, the free-run must is placed in another tank where it ferments at a controlled temperature of 14-16°C to preserve the aromatic complexity of the grape varieties.

Spier

Stellenbosch, South Africa

As one of the oldest farms in South Africa, located in Stellenbosch, Spier is described as a 'big boutique winery'.

Their environmental awareness shows in their farming and business approach. Alongside being certified organic, all of their water and 98% of their solid waste is recycled.

They are not only environmentally responsible, but also make delicious wines. According to winemaker Frans Smit: "Top quality grapes from prime vineyards are the essential building blocks for premium wine, and expressing the very best from the South African terroir".

The Chardonnay and Pinot Noir grapes for the Spier Signature Rosé are harvested early morning, gently crushed, and lightly pressed at the cellar, where skin contact is allowed to create the perfect colour. Only the free run juice is drained off to settle overnight. The Chardonnay and the Pinot Noir are fermented together in stainless-steel tanks under controlled temperatures between 12° and 14°C.

THE FRUITIER SIDE OF PINK

Off-dry or medium wines with more residual sugar may not currently be in vogue as much as they once were, but for many consumers, this may have been one of their first introductions to rosé wine. With a richer fruit profile and higher residual sugar levels, these wines are bigger in body and flavour than paler pink offerings from Provence.

Pair them with:

*Spicy food, or desserts
(in place of sweet wines)*

Poderi dal Nespoli

Emilia Romagna, Italy

Poderi dal Nespoli is located in the Bidente Valley, on the hills of Forlì, about 177 meters above sea level, an area that connects the Apennines to the Adriatic coast. It offers an excellent pedoclimatic characteristics for the production of high-quality wines.

Since 2010, when the Ravaioli family entered a partnership with Mondodelvino Group, Poderi dal Nespoli wines have found their way into numerous international markets. This is also thanks to the momentum created by state-of-the-art technologies introduced across all grape processing and wine ageing phases, which guarantees improvement in quality and ensures a highly authentic process.

They describe their Filarino as a new and free interpretation of a rosè wine – a non-conventional 100% Sangiovese.

PACKS A PUNCH

Full-bodied, fruity, and more than capable of holding their own, these rosés are set to be the main event of any drinking occasion. These styles can be higher in alcohol, but are often low in tannin – despite being closer to red wines than Provence rosés.

Pair them with:
Barbecued meats

Alois Lageder

76055	Alto Adige Lagrein Rosato 2020 , Trentino-Alto Adige, Alto Adige	75cl	12.63
-------	---	------	-------

Alois Lageder

Trentino-Alto Adige, Italy

Alois Lageder are trailblazers of sustainability in Northern Italy. They have been following biodynamic principles and implementing the practice since the 1990s, with the winery achieving certified status in 2004.

The winery also strives for zero carbon production, using solar panels, natural temperature controls, and banning plastic and foil from their bottling process.

The Lagrein Rosé is also known as Lagrein Kretzer, and this specific wine has long been a part of Lageder's winemaking tradition. The old name Kretzer is derived from a German word for a large strainer that is used to drain off the grape juice. Because the skins of the berries are so rich in colour and tannins, these grapes are lightly pressed once to ensure a light colour for the wine.

The grapes come from vineyards in the Bolzano area along the Talvera river, and the area of Ora, at an altitude of 230 to 300 metres.

Prophet's Rock

Central Otago, New Zealand

Prophet's Rock creates premium, artisan wines in Central Otago, New Zealand. Their vineyard-focused approach, combined with minimal intervention in the winery, produces wines of great structure, elegance and complexity, with considerable ageing potential.

The Infusion Pinot Noir is their version of a 'chilled red', and is also seen as a structured version of a rosé. The grapes are hand-picked, early morning at low temperatures, from one block that sits adjacent to Lake Dunstan on the Rocky Point Vineyard in Bendigo. This block is warm and early ripening, free draining, with predominantly schist soils on a steep northerly-facing slope.

The Pinot Noir is made without the normal extraction from the grape skins during fermentation. Instead, the grapes are infused in their juice before being pressed and fermented in old barrels. After fermentation, the wine is matured on its yeast lees until bottling without going through malolactic fermentation to preserve freshness.

DIDSBURY GIN

Gin-lovers Liam and Mark had sampled many varieties of gin from all over the world. Never completely satisfied, they found many of the options in the market were uninspiring. Something was missing, so these gin connoisseurs continued their search for that fresh, crisp taste they craved. After discovering a gap, they set about exploring how to make those vibrant flavours themselves.

During their journey, the pair discovered that many flavoured gins were made from artificial ingredients, with all of the fruit's best bits being removed due to over-processing. No synthetic flavourings, just ethically sourced, 100% natural ingredients.

WHITLEY NEIL

Whitley Neill Gin will now be distilled at Halewood's most awarded gin distillery, The City of London Distillery. The process will continue to incorporate Whitley Neill Original's nine distinctive botanicals, including Baobab and Cape Gooseberries, with distillation taking place in smaller, handcrafted batches to boost the artisanal credentials.

While most of Johnny Neill's inspiration for his award-winning gins comes from his ancestors' intrepid exploits abroad, the Rhubarb & Ginger Gin harks from fond memories made slightly closer to home. The essence of rhubarb adds a tart crisp edge to a smooth English gin base, while the ginger extract warms the palate for a full-bodied finish.

The Raspberry Gin combines an initial and distinct juniper, coriander and liquorice flavour, which gives way to the bright, fresh, vibrant taste of Scottish raspberries. This versatile gin can be paired with tonic as well as part of contemporary cocktails.

PUERTO DE INDIAS GIN STRAWBERRY

Puerto de Indias is the original strawberry gin, infused with ripe strawberries grown in the sun-soaked Spanish region of Huelva, an area known to produce some of the best strawberries in the world.

Their family-run distillery in Carmona is one of the longest established in the region, with copper stills dating back to 1880. A maritime reference, Puerto de Indias takes its name from Seville's port, which came to prominence during the 1500s.

This is a deliciously smooth, delicate gin, perfect for a G&T, or in a mix of classic and contemporary cocktails.

38064	Warner's Raspberry Gin	70cl	38.95

WARNER'S

Officially the world's first rhubarb gin, it was originally cooked up using rhubarb reportedly from Queen Victoria's crop in the kitchen gardens of Buckingham Palace. And meant to be a limited edition. Making rhubarb gin is a total "faff" – tons and tons of rhubarb has to be squeezed to get enough juice, and even then, the colour can greatly vary. This juice is then cut back with the Harrington Dry Gin. This Warner's Rhubarb Gin is fresh, tangy and sweet, with a naturally pink colour – each bottle containing 34% freshly pressed English rhubarb juice.

The Warner's Raspberry Gin is packed full of raspberries (and blackberries), with one-third of every bottle being pure berry juice. Originally created for the local beer festival back in 2016, it has developed quite a following since then. Working with 1% for the Planet & People's Trust for Endangered Species, a portion of every bottle goes to protecting hedgerows across the UK. With juniper and coriander notes, this gin is bursting with sweet flavours of hedgerow fruits. Serve with Mediterranean tonic, a sprig of mint and a toss of berries.

LILLET

A premium aperitif, Lillet is crafted in Podensac, south of Bordeaux, as a subtle combination of French wines and fruit macerations. Created in 1872 by brothers Paul and Raymond de Lillet.

Maison Lillet has kept its uniqueness, relying on passed-on know-how and a strong French heritage.

Sustainability is at the heart of Maison Lillet, and they implement a policy of sustainable agricultural practices through HEV (High Environmental Value) standards. They recycle over 90% of the waste generated during the production process, with 100% of fruits used in the infusion process composted less than 30km away from the site, and 100% of glass waste recycled. Producing a bottle of Lillet now also requires 40% less energy and 60% less water (FY20 vs FY16).

CHAMBORD

To make Chambord Liqueur, infusion begins by extracting juices from a selection of the finest quality raspberries, blackberries and blackcurrants. These are infused for four weeks in French spirits, and another two weeks allow the extraction of additional flavours from the berries.

After this double berry infusion, the berries are delicately pressed to capture the natural juices and sugars, resulting in a rich, silky base for Chambord liqueur.
